

To Whom It May Concern,

I cannot believe that we are having this problem. As a free market society, we are able to make a living or sell a product that we find a use for without interference from bullies or the government as long as we are not violating a law by selling this thing. There is nothing illegal about playing music, news, discussion stations, traffic, live events, or weather on a satellite radio station. If you allow special interest groups to bully you, you are not fulfilling your most important and ultimately your only job.... protecting the people of the United States from groups that wish to push people and business around because they feel threatened. Do not let your country down because if you do, they will never forget. Besides the fact that it would be a disservice to the people you're sworn to protect and to the Constitution, it will be something that will affect the reputation of the FCC.

I have the deepest respect for your office. Please do not ruin that by allowing special interest groups with tons of money to become more important than protecting people like me.

You and your office will be in my prayers as you are faced with this tough decision.

Thanks!

Chris McCollum, teacher
McKinney, TX